

A MESSAGE TO PARLIAMENT AND TO THE PANAFRICAN FAMILY

Melvin Brown

8/13/2023

The State of the African Diaspora Parliament exercised one of the premium duties as a institutional body, that is to participate in the democratic process mandated by SOAD Constitution in order to determine the Prime Minister, President of Parliament, Vice-President of Parliament and President of Parliament National Delegations.

As we move forward under this new cycle several tasks need to be accomplished, among them: Parliament Institutional Development, strengthen the link of Parliament with local communities, design, develop and implement plans, programs and projects that are beneficial, sustainable in nature and engage in the constant process of confronting colonialism and neocolonialism in every part of the world.

Every development process begins with ideas, the motor of our conduct are ideas, belief systems, processes and thinking; that is the foundation of our culture. This social construct is used as part of the process of designing, developing and implementing social, economic, political and religious models.

If a model is accepted it becomes a system and in the event that several systems are in place, the dominant idea-system is the framework umbrella.

In the last 600 plus years two framework systems came onto the international stage that witnessed disaster: colonialism and neocolonialism.

For Africa and the Diaspora, it meant going back in time, it meant the interruption of advance stages of existence, loss of life by genocide, destruction of cultures, illegal transfer of wealth, slave labor, human rights violation, confiscation of lands and genetic contamination.

Melanin has historic memory, we are the only humans that in our gene pool we have encoded the details of our growth as a people right back to the beginning of the existence of our species, including building the first civilizations.

The ideological platform of Panafrican thinking is of a multi-culture nature, its global in scope, comprehensive, inclusive in its diversity: peoples, communities, tribes, palenques, raisales, territories, principalities, nations, nation states, kingdoms, queendoms.

Brothers and Sisters, building a post- colonial civilization, means understanding the complexities of who we are, and the place we are coming from.

I Leaders and Members of Parliament, thank you for the effort displayed so far, as we decolonize our environment and build the future, every step is part of the legacy of this generation as we reconnect to that place of glory and ascended consciousness.

Melvin Brown
President of SOAD Parliament